SATURDAY, AUGUST 9.

By NEWS received over the private wire which we have connecting Honolulu and San Francisco, we have been enabled to obtain the news in advance of the presence on board of the incoming steamer, of a prominent Chinese official, who has been delegated by the Chinese Legation at Washington to visit these islands for the purpose of testing the practicability of establishing a Chinese consulate in this kingdom. The preliminary step would be the negotiation of a treaty. We await his arrival, and his report, with some

THE CONSTANTLY increasing arrivals of Chinese and the gradual occupation by that race of the places beretofore held by the native Hawaiians, has at length had the effect to arouse the latter to something like an appreciation of the situation and the danger of their being pushed to the wall by the Mongolian element. So far there has been merely a good deal of talk among the natives about the encroachments of the " Pake," but the probability is that a strong influence will be brought to bear on the next Legislature to do something towards cheeking the influx of male Chinese. The Hawaiians are beginning to comprehend that the Chinaman, by reason of his qualities of plodding industry and thriftthe very qualities which the average Hawaiian lacks-are slowly but surely occupying the land, and they don't in this case subscribe to the doctrine of the survival of the fittest. Naturally enough the reging or sell-preservation is aroused In the natives of the soil at the wholesale way in which John is coming in upon them, and, with his smile so childlike and bland, usurping their taro patches and house-lots. We hear that a public meeting of natives and foreigners is proposed by the natives for the purpose, as is stated, of " discussing any legal or constitutional means of staying the tide of Chinese male immigration which threatens to overflow the country." Application was made for the use of the Kaumakapili Church in which to hold the proposed meeting, but the Committee of Trustees refused to allow it to be used for that purpose. Perhaps some other suitable room may be obtained, but if not, an open-air meeting can be held, after the style of the " sand-lot " assemblages of San Francisco. Employers of Chinese as laborers and the extremely broadminded philanthropists will preach of the good qualities of industry and thrift possessed by their proteges, and remind us that the Almighty has created them and given them the right to dwell on the earth equally with the rest of mankind. So also it may be added, the Allwise has created many other living things-cockroaches and centipedes, for instance-but we instinctively decline to familiarly associate with them, notwithstanding their high origin. The lowship with the non-assimilating Mongolian. With us at these Islands as things are going, there remains one of two courses-either we are to bring the Chinaman up to our standard of Christian civilization, or he will drag us (Hawaiians) down to his level of Paganism. And the former is an impossibility.

In RESPECT of the stringency in the money market, to which we referred in our last, the Hawaiian Gazette of this week proposes a remarkable remedy, viz: that the government issue a series of "post notes," "at least two dollars of paper for one of coin in the Treasury." We have no idea that government will for a single moment entertain any such insanc project. At present the government paper is just as good as coin, for the reason that the public are assured beyond the shadow of a doubt that for every paper representative of value issued the equivalent in coin is in the Treasury vaults. It is better than coin as a medium of exchange, because less bulky. Government bonds readily command a premium, for the reason that government credit, through sound management, is rightly deemed unimpeachable. But our Gazette wiseacre, in his phrenzy for relief for the imaginary "worthy men who are struggling to keep their heads above water," would upset this sound condition of government credit and substitute in its stead an issue of soft money-the veritable " rag baby ' of the American inflationists. If "two dollars of paper for one of coin in the Treasury,' why not three or four, and so on, ad libirtum? The relief afforded by an inflation like the one proposed would be but temporary, and the process would have to be repeated to the end of the chapter, which end could only be disaster to the Treasury as well as to those temporarily relieved. Experience in all countries has proved beyond the shadow of a doubt, that the less tampering with the circulating medium of a country the better. All attempts to cure the present "tight" condition of the money market by the application of artificial remedies will be worse than useless, for the inevitable relapse will be more dangerous than the first attack. It is however quite true that in many of the States of America the custom has been followed by banks of issuing a great deal more paper than they had money to back it, and the history of banking failures in that country is a fair exemplification of the evil effects of the An influx of foreign capital is spoken of, but it is somewhat questionable whether the moneyed men of California will care to bring their funds hither for investment in a banking business of a limited scope, in view of larger transactions at home; and the capitalists of Europe are too far away to become interested. It is nevertheless true, and the statement is easily demonstrable, that there is here an opportunity for the investment of say a half to a million of dollars, on perfectly safe securities, at a rate of interest at from seven to nine per cent. Were these facts thoroughly known in Europe, where by last accounts we learn that money was rapidly accumulating and interest ruled low owing to the scarcity of safe and profitable means of investing, it is tee. I am protoundly moved and de-sirious of expressing my mournful sympathy for expectations" from large crops and remunerative prices, they are cutting down expenses and economising wherever possible. It must not be forgotten in this connection that the prices obpersists in his resignation. The Sultan still declines to accept it, but, to avoid a deadlock, has appointed to accept it, but, to avoid a deadlock, has appointed tained for our sugars in California are some-

In conclusion we may remark that the inference sought to be drawn that there is an impending financial crisis here and that there are many worthy men in our midst who are now "struggling hard to keep their heads above water," is quite unauthorized by the facts and calculated to give a wrong and injurious impression abroad. Whether the policy s a wise one or not, it is nevertheless true that there is more mutual forbearancenot to say sentimentalism-among business men in this community than in almost any other on the face of the earth. But notwithstanding the present inconvenience from the stringency in the money market resulting from very obvious causes, we have the satisfaction of knowing that the ultimate prosperity of the country is not an ephemeral one, but upon an assured basis-the profitable cultivation of the soil and a near market for our products.

Hawaiian Methods of Business.

Parties who have recently returned from Hoolulu express the conviction that business is eing forced at the Islands to a degree that is tkely to prove disastrous, should there be any crop failures or other miscarriage of plans and enterprises. Since the passage of the Reciprocity Treaty all departments of industry and commerce have taken on a rapid growth. This has been especially noticeable during the last year. Goods are arriving from San Francisco. Portland and her foreign ports in unheard of quantities, and is clear to the most casual observer that imports are in excess of the consumptive wants of the peo-Money is scarce at the Islands, and the prinpal supply is obtained from San Francisco. Within the past year the coin shipments hence to Honolulu have been as follows:

The above amount was all in Trade Dollars, except $300 in Half Dollars last August and $300 in Half Dollars and $15,000 in Gold in June. The October and November shipments were manifested as above, though in each case the amount sent was $20,000 in Trade Dollars. This increases the total for the year to $136.580. This is probably a larger amount of coin than has been imported at Hon olulu in any previous year, but it has not kept pace with the increase in the volume of business, and hence though there is more money at the Islands than at any previous time within the past few years, there is more stringency in financial circles. This fact has been observed for several weeks and has culminated in large shipments this month. The last Australian steamer, which left here on the 7th took down $65,000 to Honolulu, of which $31,000 was in Gold coin and $34,000 in Standard Dollars, The Bank of California sent down $35,000 of the above amount, and Williams, Blanchard & Co. the remainder. This is the first lot of Standard Dollars of the present coinage exported from the country. Adding this amount to what was sent down during the previous year, makes a total of a little over $200,000 which has been added to the currency of the Hawaiian Islands since July 1, 1878. Despite this large increase, money appears to be scarce there, and credits are extended to the utmost limits. The quarterly settlements for June 30th were quite unsatisfactory, many parties being obliged to ask for a continuance. The arrival of the $65,000 sent down on the 7th may help some of these delinquents-to square up A comical feature in this connection is the statement made by a Honolulu instinct of self-preservation in the Hawaiian as paper that debtors not only avoid creditors in the well as the Caucasian is antagonistic to any felusual ways, but they decline to receive bills at the hands of those sent to deliver them. In these cases the parties put out baskets or boxes at the loors, labelled "bills," and the collectors drop their statements into these receptacles, and call at some future time for a reply. Just imagine any considerable number of merchants on California, Front, Battery, and Sansome streets pursuing a similar policy, and some idea will be formed of the perversion of the credit system at Honolulu at present .- S. F. Bulletin, July 18.

Supreme Court, Hawaiian Islands, July Term, 1879.

Manumanu (k) and Mahuka (w) vs. W H Rickard-In HARRIS, CH. J., JUDD AND MCCULLY, J. J. Opinion by Judd. J.

This case comes before us on a bill of exceptions from the Circuit Court of the Third Judicial Circuit, alleging that the justices of that Court, by whom the case was heard, the jury being waived, erred in holding that the facts shown did not make out the defense of a title by prescription.

The action was electment for a tract of 9 4-10 acres of land in Hamakus, Hawaii, which, prior to defendant's occupation five years ago, was unfenced and uncultivated and not in the actual occupation of defendant's grantor, or of any person. The plaintiff proved title to the land by inheritance from the patentee Kekos, and to this finding no exception

The law is clear that "the nature of that adverse pos session of land, which is required to constitute a bar to the legal title, must be an actual, visible, notorious, distinct and hostile possession." 2 Washburn on Real Property, p. 489. Although the character of that possession may be varied according to the nature of the land in question, still it must be of such notoriety as that the owner may be presumed to have notice of it. We find, upon a review of the testimony, that the occasional visits to the land by defendant's granter, without residence or occupation and her declarations, not brought to the knowledge of plaintiffs, that the land was her's, were not sufficient; and that the Circuit Court did not err in holding that the defendant had not shown title by prescription. Judgment was given by the Court for the plaintiff for the land with damages assessed at $100, for the entire period of defendant's occupation and costs. The Court added that the question of improvements was to remain open unless settled by the parties. It appears from the evidence sent up that there was some testimony tending to show that defendant's house was partially over the boundary of the land in question, and that there was cane planted by defendant, which might turn out to be on this land. The testimony was not explicit, it being a matter of uncertainty as to where the boundaries of this land were with reference to the house and the cane, as the defendant had other land adjoining. It is alleged that this judgment is wrong, because it does not purport to be final.

The judgment of the Court was final as to the posses sion of the land and the damages. The remark as to improvements was unnecessary, but it was perhaps made in order to afford the defendant an opportunity to show more accurately what improvements he had put on the land, which he could legally remove. He, not having taken advantage of the opportunity afforded him to make a further showing while that Court was still in session cannot now claim, that the judgment is invalid on the ground that it indicated that there were other questions, which might after arise which the Court did not settle. If further litigation between the parties on the question of improvements is not barred by this judgment, it is certain that all questions as to the right to the land are settled by this judgment. It is therefore final. Exceptions overruled. Castle & Hatch for plaintiffs; Richard F Bickerton for defendant. Honolulu, August 2nd, 1879.

Makea (k) vs. Nalua et al.-In Banco. Opinion by Judd, J.

This was an action of ejectment for a piece of land at Kaneohe, Koolsupoko, Oahu, heard at the October Term of this Court, 1878. The jury rendered a verdict for the defendant. The point upon which the case turned was, whether the plaintiff was the cousin (kaikunane) of Kalele, the widow of Hingaimalams, the original patenthus lying idle would be brought to Hawaii nei. heir of this estate. Kalua was proven to be the brother of the patentce, and, it is clear, has no inheriting relaclose that the plaintiff is now prepared with evidence believing that a new trial will further the interests o
